“COME AWAY MY BELOVED” BY FRANCES ROBERTS

Keep Your Face Toward the Sunrise

Behold, I have sent you out alone,
but I have gone ahead to prepare your way;
yes, through the darkness to bear a light.
I ask you only to follow me,
for I will surely lead you in a safe path,
though dangers lurk on every hand.
Yes, I will be your protection.

I will be your comfort. I will be your joy.
I will turn the bitter tear to sweet perfume.
By My Spirit, I will mend the broken heart,
I will pour warm fragrant oil into the deep wound.
For my heart is fused with your heart,
and in your grief, I am one with you.
Yes, I will fill the vacant place.
My arms shall hold you, and you will not fall.
My grace shall sustain you, and you will not faint.
My joy will fortify your spirit even as a broken body
is rejuvenated by a blood transfusion.
My smile shall dispel the shadows,
and My voice shall speak courage.
Yes, I will surely keep you, and you will not know fear.
You shall rest your foot upon the threshold of heaven.
I shall hide you in My pavilion.
You shall have My constant care.
I will not leave you for a moment.
I will keep you from despair;
I will deliver you from confusion.
When you are perplexed,
I will guide you in wisdom and in judgment.
By your light others shall be led out of the valley.
By your courage the weak shall be lifted up.
By your steadfastness he that wavers
shall be stabilized.
Lo, the hour is upon you. Do not look back.
Keep your face toward the sunrise,
for He shall rise fresh daily in your soul
with healing in His wings.

Ann explains to the women at Christian Women's Job Corp that , like dots on glasses, the lies we believe distort our vision of ourselves, of others and of God.
